District Running Out of Elementary Classrooms

News Briefs

3 Residents Hurt In M-72 Accident

Three Crawford County residents were injured last Tuesday night, April 3, in a two car accident on M-72 East, near Stephans Bridge Road.

The accident occurred at 9:10 p.m. when an eastbound vehicle struck a second vehicle that was partially blocking the eastbound traffic lane.

A Sheriff's deputy explained that the parked car had attempted to turn into a driveway when the driver saw that the driveway was soft and was afraid to proceed for fear of becoming stuck.

The Jaws of Life were used to free one of the victims. The three injured persons were taken to Mercy Hospital. One person was later transferred to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City with a back injury.

Citations for careless driving and driving while under the influence of alcohol were issued. Names are being withheld pending arraignment in 83rd District Court.

3 Seek School Board Positions

Three residents of the Crawford-AuSable School District filed petitions for two seats on the Board of Education before the Monday, April 9, filing deadline.

Petitions were filed by Christopher S. Dunckley, incumbent, Carol E. Ramaswamy, and Robert A. Gor-

Dunckley was elected in 1988 to a special two year term to fill Fred Allen's position, when Allen resigned before the end of his term. Dunckley will be running for his first four year term.

Steve Langseth, who served on the board for the past four years, will not be seeking a second term.

Election for these seats will occur on June 11.

Summer Job Fair To Help Ages 15-19

A 1990 Summer Job Fair designed to give Crawford County employers an opportunity to meet and interview young candidates for summer employment will be held Wednesday, May 2.

This project is being co-sponsored by the Crawford AuSable Schools, Grayling Chamber of Commerce, and MESC Job Service.

Candidates between the ages of 15 and 19 years will be participating in the fair from 1 to 4 p.m. at Grayling High School in the Chuck Kolb Learning Center.

Participants are being recruited from the high school. All candidates will be pre-screened for their occupational interests, and will be allowed to meet with up to four employers that best suit their skills and needs.

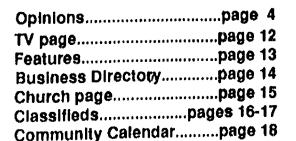

If you are interested in reserving a place for your business in the Summer Job Fair, contact one of the following individuals: Bill Klinger, Grayling High School, 348-7641 ext. 28; Jim Karpicke, MESC Job Service, 348-8222 or Deborah Allen, Grayling Chamber of Commerce, 348-2921.

The Crawford-AuSable School District is running out of elementary school classrooms.

"We have 10 fewer classrooms for K-5 students today than we did in 1977 and 175 more students," stated Kent Reynolds, Crawford-AuSable Superintendent, at a recent public meeting.

Reynolds said in 1977, the school district got rid of 14 portable classrooms that had outlived their usefulness. Ten of the portables were located at the Grayling Middle School to house five fifth and five sixth grades, and four were located along the north side of the Grayling Elementary School.

"These were all used portable classrooms when we bought them," Reynolds said. The average life of a portable classroom is ten years and Reynolds said some of the portables they discarded were approaching 20 years old or more.

Even though three classrooms were added to the Frederic Elementary School in 1977, grades K-5 still suffered a net loss of six classrooms.

The Grayling Elementary School added five classrooms in 1987, but lost the use of the two remaining portable classrooms, for a net gain of three classrooms.

gramming, developmental kindergarten and the primary room, adopted by the district between 1977-1989, took another four classrooms. Three more classrooms were lost when class sizes were reduced.

"We are trying to be at 25 students per class," Reynolds said. "We are maintaining those numbers at kindergarten and first grade, but when you do that, it takes more classrooms."

While available classroom space in the district is becoming more scarce, enrollment at the elementary level continues to increase at much faster rate than at the middle school or high school levels. (See accompanying graph.)

"The indication is that elementary enrollment is going to level off because our kindergarten enrollment is leveling off," Reynolds said. "But it is going to stay up there in the 800-900 student range."

The 1990 Kindergarten Round-up at the Frederic and Grayling elementary schools resulted in the registration of 149 children with an estimated 20 more children expected to register before school begins in the fall.

This number is down from 1989's record enrollment of 186

Kindergarten enrollment between 1968-1979 peeked in 1975 with about 155 students and then began decreasing until it

Hartwick Pines Museum Exhibits Open For 1990

The first Department of State satellite museum to open for the season is Hartwick Pines State Park Lumbering Museum, which opened to visitors on April 1. The Lumbering Museum provides an insightful glimpse into the lumbering industry and Michigan's late 1800s history.

During the "White Pine Era" from 1840 to 1910, an estimated 160 billion board feet of native pine were cut from Michigan forests: "A quantity sufficient to floor the entire land area of Michigan with 1-inch pine boards, with enough remaining to cover Rhode Island," according to a Museum display.

The cutting of Michigan's original trees shaped the settlement and industrialization of the state. The Museum is located in Hartwick Pines State Park, one of the few remaining stands (49) acres of native white pine in Michi-by the Michigan Departments of State and Natural Resources, features three log buildings which were built in the 1930s by the Civilian Conservation Corps --- another significant chapter in Michigan history. The log buildings contain many artifacts of authentic logging equipment and rooms furnished in the style of the day, Continued on Page 5

Reducing Waste Making Cents to Business

"We produce it --- we can reduce it," says Loch McCabe, of Resource Recycling Systems, Inc., of Michigan.

And he says the smart businesses already are reducing waste. "Waste reduction not only makes good ecological sense, but it makes economic sense," McCabe told Grayling Regional Chamber of Commerce members at a Lunch and Issues meeting last Thursday at the Copper Kettle.

"One half of all the waste in Michigan is produced by businesses," says McCabe. "That's about 6 million tons a year at a cost of about $100 a ton or more to get rid of the waste."

McCabe says many businesses are realizing the importance of waste reduction to their bottom line.

Most businesses pay a lot for raw materials, yet they wind up throwing some of them in the trash bin, he says. So they end up paying for the materials twice. McCabe points out it costs money for an employee or maintenance person to collect the waste, it costs money to haul the waste away, and it costs money to dispose it at a landfill.

McCabe says the cost of getting rid of waste is expected to soar in the next ten years as landfill space become scarce. Waste reduction makes economic sense right now, but it will be a business necessity in a few years. Gone are the times when it was inexpensive and easy to dispose of waste, he says.

One of the first steps to reducing waste is to look at your trash reduction; restaurants, offices, manufacturers, large and small bin to see what is being throw out.

"I suggest you take a friend with you," says McCabe, "it can be a traumatic experience."

With the high cost of raw materials these days, many business people pale at the view of the dumpster behind their business. They paid a lot of money for the raw materials and some of the materials are not even being used. On top of that, the business is paying money to have someone haul the unused waste materials away.

McCabe says source reduction should be the highest priority on your list to reduce waste. Take a look at how to eliminate the waste. The State of Michigan Office of Waste Reduction call 517/335-1178.)

After looking at source reduction, focus on reuse of products. The most common example is using the back side of office paper that was previously used on one side only.

Recycling and composting materials are the final steps to retailers, and service firms. His presentation of state firms detailing techniques and businesses who reduce waste included a local manufacturer, Georgia-Pacific's Beaver Creek Resin Plant.

McCabe praised Georgia-Pacific as taking waste reduction several steps further at its Beaver Creek plant.

"This entire plant and its processes were designed to eliminate hazardous waste and all waste water discharges, saving tens of thousands of dollars in waste disposal costs every year.'

McCabe also points out the plant's state-of-the-art computer monitoring system which tracks waste recovery and other plant functions.

Services has entire brochures on step by step procedures to. By the year 2010, McCabe says he can see a business that reduce waste. (Write to P.O. Box 30004, Lansing, Mi 48909 or currently fills two dumpsters a week placing a single small can out once a week for trash disposal. Landfills will be 100 miles away and very expensive. All containers will be reusable, products will be made out of recycled materials, and composting will even enter the office scene. Products will also be made to last. "Before 1950, we did not have a throw-away society," he look at. For help in recycling materials in Crawford County, says. "The generations that grew up during the Great Depression and World War II's rationing know how to save things, use

Let's turn the clock back to 1917 and see who was what at that time. John F. Humm was postmaster, Oscar Palmer was probate judge, Wm. Cody was sheriff, John J. Niederger was county clerk, Edward S. Houghton was treasurer, Allen B. Failing was register of deeds, Glen Smith was prosecuting attorney and James A. Kalahr was school commissioner.

Some of the business people at that time were: Marius and Holger Hanson, Bank of Grayling; Chas. Canfield, dentist; R.D. Connine, storekeeper; E.G. Clark was the leader of The Citizen's Band; Frank Dreese, storekeeper; and Claude C. Fink managed Shoppenagons Inn. John Goudrow had a shoe store, M.A. Bates managed the phone co., George Olson had the opera house, and Rasmus Hanson had the sawmill.

John Hodge and Clyde King had a restaurant, Mrs. Milnes ran the Burton Hotel, Dr. S.N. Insley took care of the ill. Wm. C. Johnson made canoe paddles (later founded AuSable Woodworking Co. in Frederic). These are just some of the folks that helped to lay the foundations on which the local business community was built.

I wish to say a big thank you to Ingeborg Raac for allowing me to copy a lot of historical information that she has collected about our area. That old information is hard to come by and deeply appreciated. Thank you again, kind lady.

To the early settlers about the most important man outside of the Doctor (if they were lucky enough to have one) was the village blacksmith. A good blacksmith could do so many things for them. Keeping their horses and oxen shod was just one of his functions. Making the tools needed for logging and farming, and repairing broken ones kept his forge hot day after day. In a typical day he might be called upon to repair anything from a tea kettle to a steam engine. The decorative iron work on old houses was mostly the work of a local blacksmith.

They were mostly a thing of the past by my time, but Bill Cox would still get his forge going once in a while to do a job for someone. It was always a big thing with us kids to go and watch him at work. Shaping and bending that white hot iron with hammer blows on the anvil was a sight that fascinated us. Shoeing some horses and oxen could be a real hair raiser. Some animals must have saved their meanness for the blacksmith when he tried to put shoes on them. There would at times be quite a dust storm before the job got done.

I-75 Exchange Article Raises Interesting Questions

Dear Editor:

North Downriver Road/I-75 exchange was both interesting and informative. The article does raise an interesting question which there appears to be a simple answer for.

If, as the article suggested, the traffic count in Grayling fluctuates so dramatically in the summertime due at least in part to military traffic, then why doesn't the military traffic route itself to Camp Grayling via the North Higgins Lake State park exit (also known as the Military Road exit) or the Four Mile road exit? Any traffic going to Camp Grayling would find that route much more expeditious then going through the City of Grayling. Any military traffic going to the

Notes from the Woods

By Nancy Lemmen

My mother was not impressed. She has been, after all, a pretty good sport about this subject in the 17 years that we have been married.

Not once has she complained about never receiving that long-awaited phone call which makes the tribulations of her own parenthood experience worthwhile the one when I announce, "You're going to be a grandma."

No, indeed. She was even mildly enthusiastic in 1976 when we said, instead, "We have bought a full-blooded black Labrador retriever with papers named Buddy." She remained tolerant the following spring when we called to say, "We have gotten ourselves a second dog, a black Lab/German shorthair pointer mix named Jody." She was supportive in 1986 when we told her that we had acquired Missy, a beautiful yellow dog of uncertain origins, as a companion for Jody, who had just lost She was even amused in the winter of 1977, when I phoned to say, "We have added a third dog, Murphy, who was abandoned and living under a deserted mobile home.

But her tolerance for grandpets over grandchildren snapped last week when I told her, "We just got a cat."

"OH NO!" she said. I HATE cats," she replied. Oh.

Even my sweet father, reports my mother, just shook his head and smiled when she told him that I had gotten myself a fourth pet. "That crazy girl," he seemed to be saying. "What will she do next?"

And, furthermore, how do the three dogs feel about our getting the cat?

"Oh, we love cats," they answer, "for breakfast, lunch or dinner."

Okay, okay. No problem. We'll just keep the cat hidden in her litter box room (conveniently located in my computer room) when you dogs are in the house.

Like Jody, Missy and Murphy, she wasn't exactly a planned pet. One evening we received a telephone call from my sister-in-law, who said (in essence), "We have to get rid of Misha's cat, Alice. She's wild, torments our other cat and eats our wool clothing. Would you like to have her?

Gee, thanks, we thought you'd never ask.

"Uh, why don't you just look around for another home, and we could sort of be, uh, your last resort, okay?'

We remained confident that somebody in their city was crazy enough to be craving our niece's wild, wool-eating, six-month-old cat.

But no. A few nights later, she called back. "I want you to know that Misha says, 'I love Alice, and I love Nancy and Dave, and I love Jody, Missy and Murphy. If I have to give Alice up, I can't think of any other people I'd rather have her live with.' But we don't want you to feel under any pressure to take her."

None at all, thank you very much. Okay, we give up. We'll pick her up on Saturday.

"Thanks a bunch, guys. Just give her a good try. If things don't work out, bring her back. We'll know that it wasn't entirely your fault."

Thanks again.

"Listen," we say, "Have Misha write out a list of cat owners' instructions for us. We've never had one before. We don't know about things like kitty litter and feeding and exercise and vaccinations."

When we picked the cat up, our 15-year-old niece had provided us with the following instructions, printed here with her permission:

"THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT CATS (OR MAYBE JUST ALICE)"

1. Often, they don't like to be picked up. But don't feel you never can. Just let them come to you sometimes.

2. Alice doesn't like to be held close to you unless it's her idea.

3. She likes to play "finger games." Example: move you hand under a blanket or towel. She loves to pounce on it and chase it.

4. It might be a good idea to put her away at night or shut your door unless you enjoy being licked to death or having a loud purring in your ear.

5. She is VERY affectionate when she wants to be, and she doesn't bite too often.

6. Oh! The first thing you will want to do when you bring her home is put her litter box somewhere and then put her in it. Then let her explore by herself. This will make her feel it's her territory, so she will feel secure.

7. Always make sure she has plenty of water.

8. If you don't know where she is, call Alice a few times and she should come meowing.

9. KEEP WOOL OUT OF SIGHT! 10. She loves to watch T.V.

11. She likes to be outside, but you probably shouldn't let her out for awhile.

12. If you lock her up, she is very loving and hyper at the same time.

13. She likes to watch the toilet flush and she's confused about the shower.

14. She makes REALLY weird noises when she sees birds, so don't worry.

15. Her birthday? The 14th of September sounds good. We figured out that it was sometime around there.

16. She loves to be scratched under the collar! 17. Have fun with her! Thanks for taking her!

18. She's a GREAT little kitty.

Misha was right about everything. In the short span of two weeks, the kitty has turned our home into her personal territory, destroying a few of our plants, socks and other possessions in the process, but certainly not our instant affection for her.

So some of the family isn't so thrilled. I am. She is, as the lyrics of the song go, "wonderful, marvelous," and "I guess I'm in love."

You say you're not a cat person, Mom? Only because you've never had one.

Soviets face turmoil for now

RUSSIA WILL BE going through considerable turmoil internally for quite some time, and things will get worse before they get better.

That's the prediction offered by Henry Kissinger, Nobel Peace Prize winner and former U.S. Secretary of State, at the recent Government Affairs Conference of the National Newspaper Association.

Claiming that the world today is similar to what it was at the turn of the century, Mr. Kissinger pointed out that no communist system has ever met its needs.

As Russia tries to move from central planning to a free market economy, Mr. Kissinger said, Gorbachev will have his hands full.

"For a while, things will get worse," Mr. Kissinger said. "That will require strong leadership." He said Mr. Gorbachev is trying to create a new leadership system, that will weaken and in time eliminate the communist party. He said "one party rule has been replaced by one-man rule,"

"What will emerge is not quite clear," he said.

MR. KISSINGER SAID that Russia has "no history of democracy... no national consciousness" which will make any internal changes more difficult.

"If a nation has done something one way for 700 years, would you say there is a certain proclivity?" he asked.

Pointing out that there are 20,000 nuclear weapons in Soviet territory, Mr. Kissinger said: "Sure we can reduce military spending. But before we go too far, we need definition of possible dangers and ways to deal with "These are good problems we have...."

"But history does not know any resting place. Let's not get too euphoric, but still this is a tremendous achievement for our foreign policy."

On Germany, Mr. Kissinger said "unification is unavoidable... the danger is this: Located in the center of Europe, Germans have more neighbors than anybody else. They need a high degree of leadership, and they have never had it."

SPEAKING MORE OF DOMESTIC matters, Speaker Tom Foley, another conference speaker, warned that the U.S. must "continue to be the premier military power... but it is a bi-polar world no more."

Where should any resources, now available from the peace dividend, be directed? Mr. Foley listed these needs:

Education. A deteriorating infrastructure. Health. Deficit.

For the coming congressional year, the speaker predicts the congress would deal, "in one form or another," with a child care bill, clean air bill, help for disabled Americans, family leave, a major farm bill, campaign reform.

He also said "I believe we will take steps to isolate social security funds from this general fund deficit."

Mr. Foley has provided quite a check list for congressional action this year; it will be interesting to watch the progress of legislation and see if the House's top leader has forecast correctly.

SOME OTHER rememberable quotes from the NNA conference:

Speaker Tom Foley: "My criticism of the President is not that he promised not to consider any new taxes, but that he's kept his promise."

Sen. Albert Gore, one-time candidate for President: "I'm Al Gore. I used to be the next president of the United States. If I run again, I'm going to run as an older candidate."

Rep. Frank McCloskey of Indiana, discussing the U.S. Postal Service: "Production is up, but efficiency is not up. That means they're processing more, but they're screwing up more."

William Bennett, national drug czar: "In my neighborhood, if we see someone dealing drugs, we call 911... We don't convene a seminar on root causes. We demand some action, and if we don't get it, we raise hell." Lawrence S. Eagleburger, deputy secretary of state, on Cuba: "Castro cannot ignore events. He's on the wrong bottomed out in 1979 at about 115 students. Reynolds attributed the enrollment decline of the late 1970's to the loss of the Bear Archery company, which moved to Florida, taking many Grayling residents with it.

In 1980 kindergarten enrollment was back up to 140 students and, with the exception of 1982 and 1985, the kindergarten enrollments have been raising dramatically each year.

Michigan State University's five year enrollment projections, based on birth rates, have indicated that the Crawford-AuSable's kindergarten enrollments are going to continue in the 165-185 student range.

"They don't show that enrollment will go to 200," said Reynolds, "but they also don't show enrollment returning to the 140 range we seemed to be sitting at for a long time."

to have 185 students in each grade level, which equates into seven classrooms for each grade level.

" $7 \times 25 = 175$," stated Reynolds. "At 185 students that means of classrooms available now," he said. "In fact, we are currently using every single classroom at both elementary schools, with some programs meeting in hallways, which are not appropriate spaces for children." Reynolds said they do not have space for speech therapy or the gifted and talented program.

made it necessary last fall to bus two fourth grade classes, one kindergarten class, one developmental kindergarten class and one primary room to the Frederic Elementary School.

The problem of too many students vying for too few classrooms will increase as the larger kindergarten classes move Reynolds explained that the school district needs to prepare through the elementary schools to the Grayling Middle School.

Again Reynolds used basic multiplication to explain the limited space available at the Grayling Middle School.

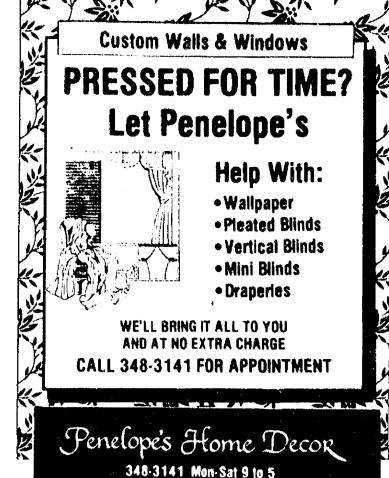

"185 (students) times 4 (5-8 grades currently housed at the 26 or 27 students per classroom. We don't have that number Grayling Middle School) = 740 students," he stated. "The Grayling Middle School is constructed for 600 students."

Reynolds explained that when the middle school was renovated the outside walls of the building determined how many classrooms could be designed to fit inside. It was built to accommodate 600 students and no more.

Within the next three or four years the middle school is going Lack of classrooms at the Grayling Elementary School has to be at capacity and Reynolds said it will be necessary to move at least half of the fifth grade classrooms back to the elementary schools.

> The Grayling Middle School was renovated to solve the district's 6-8th grade housing problems, but Reynolds said it was never meant to solve the district's long term problems at the elementary level.

> "We are at a situation where we have no classrooms available at the elementary level," said Reynolds, "and we are going to have to move seven classrooms of fifth graders back to the elementary level," With the five classes currently being bussed to Frederic, Reynolds said the district is facing a shortage of at least twelve classrooms by the fall of 1992.

Selesky Outlines Issues For Her 103rd State Representative Candidacy

By Sue Schroeder

Barbara A. Selesky, a native of Crawford County, has announced several issues she will key on during her candidacy for the Republican nomination for 103rd House of Representatives in the August 7th primary.

Selesky defines her platform as "meeting the needs of 103rd district. The issues of homesteads, health-care and high schools are crucial to our quality of life in northern sentative, Selesky would like to see an abatement on property tax increases for persons 65 and older, handicapped, or disabled. The abatement would be held until the sale of the property and then collected on real sale value.

Selesky feels that in order to obtain community support for the schools, we need a property tax credit for homeowners who volunteer 20 hours per month to an accredited school of their choice.

Selesky also wants a climate of equitable liability insurance for our physicians. She would like to see Medi-

Resource Review

By Bruce Patrick, Conservation Oficer

Today's civilization produces many waste products in many forms. But they all end up as gases, solids or liquids.

Gaseous waste is generally ejected into the atmosphere, after some treatment, and is carried away by air currents, eventually causing problems for someone down-wind. Cars, trucks, buses and wood stoves all contribute to the problem, although not as visibly or dramatically as large smoke stacks. Solid wastes are generally taken to a landfill where they are buried, out of sight and out of mind. At least for a while. Even the best landfills cause problems. They are unsightly, smelly attractions for sea gulls, crows and rats which no one wants nearby. Even with all of their associated problems, today's landfills are much better than the old township dumps which dotted the land-

Liquid wastes also come from individuals as well as corporations. In years past, all liquid wastes were disposed of by the cheapest and simplest manner - just dump it into the nearest waterway and let it float away. Needless to say, the pollution problem from this disposal method increased the further one moved downstream.

So where are we today as we try to face our waste disposal problems? Air pollution controls are fought by nearly everyone because they are too expensive.

Industries and individuals alike complain about the cost, whether it be for a smokestack "scrubber" which would reduce acid rain as would a catalytic converter on a new Solid wastes are trücked to landfills, which are really not much better than the old dumps, except maybe less convenient and more expensive. Of course there are a few people who are willing to "get even with the DNR" by throwing their trash along roads and trails, thereby eliminating both of those drawbacks.

And liquid wastes are required to be disposed of properly, either in a water treatment facility, or into underground storage, several thousand feet down. Of course when storm sewers are connected to sanitary sewers there will be overflows into nearby waterways, which bring us back to the old solution.

We are being choked, buried and drowned by our own wastes. The best solutions we have now are stop-gap at best. Sometime we, or our children, are going to have to say enough is enough and find better, and cheaper, it will be.

A Look At Our Past

Take Me Home...

GREAT WITH KIDS--Cinnamon is a small female "Heinz 57" breed with a terrific personality. She is about a year old and completely housebroken. Cinnamon and all the Crawford County Animal Shelter pets can be seen Monday through Friday from 1-3 p.m. and on weekends from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The shelter is located next door to the Eagles Club on M-72 East.

Animal Care Tip

Heartworm disease season is approaching. It travels via mosquitos, which bite an already infected dog and pick up the heartworm larvae, then bite another dog and pass on the

The heartworms travel to the dog's heart and lungs, where they grow and slowly kill the animal. Symptoms include persistent coughing, listlessness, poor endurance, weight loss and difficulty in breathing. Sadly, the disease is usually fatal.

However, heartworm disease is preventable. Now is the time of year — before mosquito season begins — to take your dog to the veterinarian for a blood test and medication. The Full of music when the wind blows real answers to the problem. blood test is imperative because if your pet already has heart-The sooner we do that, the worms, the medication can be fatal. Several types of daily and monthly medications are available.

Doodles from the Tall Timber

I suspect there are many like me that weren't unhappy about the disappearing snow. This is my favorite time of year, despite the temporary reversals to winter like weather such as the weather forecasters are predicting as I write this. Rain, cloudy days. and sometimes trouble with mud go with the season. They all pre-stage that really glorious, but short period of time we think of as spring.

The series of events that signals that short rebirth are taking place now. The Bluebirds are back and building nests in the boxes scattered about the area. One box may not be used by the Bluebirds, however, as it was occupied by a Red Squirrel. If you have Bluebird boxes, they should be checked to eliminate any unwanted guests.

Whether you are a turkey hunter or not, it is hard to over look the strutting and displays the tom turkeys are doing. The flocks are being broken down into smaller groups under a tom who will not tolerate the presence of another male.

The buds on the trees continue to swell and one day the forest will look like green mist as the new leaves start to appear. Almost underfoot, the Arbutus buds show the same tendency and just about a month from now the blossoms will appear. When the Adders Tongue show up, they should be in company with the morels and that is only about a month away also. So get ready, spring doesn't wait for anybody.

Verse or Worse By Joe Murphy

THE YOUNG MAN'S JOURNEY

Down the long and winding river To the bright and shining sea Where in the village of Chief Winnamuka His daughter Bright Star waits for me

My canoe of birch bark and cedar Like a feather on the water glides along Carrying me to my beloved Bright Star I raise my voice in joyful song

A doe deer and her young one Stand near the river as I glide by Watching this thing that travels the river Listening to its joyful yet plaintive cry

All around me is virgin forest Land of pine trees straight and tall Here the mighty timber wolf makes its call

The busy beaver and playful offer Pay no heed as I glide by They must know from my singing There is no danger from such as I

All is peaceful in the forest And I have no need for meat or pelt Plenty of pemmican in my basket Plenty of wampum in my belt

In this land of joy and plenty Soon our tall sons will carry on The traditions of our people And raise their voice in happy song

The Bible Speaks

The Gospel of John Part # 121 Come and Dine

The hungry disciples weary from a night of failure come to shore to observe the food of Our deepest sympathy is Christ's provision to meet their needs. "As soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread." The crucified, risen Christ had found His discouraged disciples in their failure and need, and had prepared for them a hot breakfast. God had cared for another discouraged disciple named Elijah in like manner centuries before. (I Kings 19:5, 6). Before His crucifixion Christ had washed His disciples feet reminding them of the importance of being servants to others in need. Now after His resurrection, He builds a fire and cooks their breakfast, again reminding them of the importance of serving others.

He said to the rich young ruler in Matthew 19:21: "...go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me." He said to Peter in Matthew 14:29: "...Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus." He said to Lazarus in John 11:43: "...Lazarus, come forth" and Lazarus came forth alive from the tomb.

The disciples then receive the water of life freely." (Rev.

The disciples then share the from the hands of Christ their and cared for their needs. What a thought for us today. The God who created us in His image, died upon the cross for our sins, still loves us enough to meet our daily > needs. Are you tired and weary today. Jesus says, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heaven laden, and I will give you rest." (Matthew 11:28). Are you unsaved today? "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take cross, mocked by a bloody crown of thorns, flanked on each side by a crucified thief.

Haughtily, the first thief jeered, "If you are the Christ, save yourself." No reply

In contrast, the second thief said to the first, "This man has done nothing wrong." Jesus replied, "Today you shall be with Me in Paradise.

We may not all be criminals, but we are all sinners. Yet, God sent Jesus Christ, His son, to be crucified for our sins, so that we might have eternal life, asking for forgiveness through Jesus' name.

Good deeds alone are not enough. Believe in the crucifixion and the resurrection of Jesus Christ through faith in God's word.

This Easter lift your voices in praise to God for the gift of His Son. Do not seek proof as did the first thief, but like the second thief have faith and BELIEVE.

There's no need to worry about college costs with the number of grants that are available to you. Low-income people are given opportunities to further their education through the state and federal governments.

One grant is the PELL, created by the federal government for people with lowincomes.

Mary Raymond, a former ment at Kirtland Community Crawford County Resident College.

Navy Seaman Recruit Kristine L. Cottenham, daughter of Laurelee C. Cottenham of 402 Erie St., Grayling, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command, Orlando, Fla.

A 1988 graduate of Grayling High School, she joined May 1st. the Navy in December 1989.

College from 1981 to 1983 on a PELL Grant. She said, "Without them I never would have gotten an education."

Because of Mary's low paying job and the responsibilities she had of raising a family, furthering her education seemed hopeless. "The availability of the grants gave me the incentive to get an education," she said. Mary

Another federal grant is the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant (SEOG). The state of Michigan offers those with low-income, the attended Kirtland Community Michigan Educational Opportunity Grant, the Michigan Adult Part-time Grant and the Tuition Incentive Program Grant.

The number of college grants issued to low-income people within the last ten years has steadily increased, according to the Kirtland's financial aid office.

Grayling High School and Kirtland Community College now works as a secretary for supply the forms that are the Criminal Justice Depart- needed for these grants. The financial aid office at Kirtland will answer any questions you may have regarding grants. They are there to help you Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. You can call their office during these hours at 275-5121.
